

Information on the take-back and separate collection of electrical and electronic equipment for consumers, other end users and distributors

Used batteries and electrical and electronic equipment (EEE) are not waste. Dispose them at the take-back or other specified places. Allow further use of EEE and batteries. Prevent any release of hazardous substances from these products. Protect health and the environment. Even you can make the difference.

A) The take-back and separate collection of electrical and electronic equipment and portable batteries in shops - information for consumers and end users

O2 Czech Republic a.s., provides, in all its stores throughout the opening hours, the free of charge take-back and separate collection of used mobile phones, modems and telephones and other telecommunication terminal devices connected to the fixed network. A receipt for the EEE is issued at the request of the customer.

Do not bring large amount (over 20 kg) of listed used EEE, that does not come from households, to shops, we will ensure separate collection, see C.

Portable batteries and accumulators can be handed in all our shops.

Visit the website of O2 Czech Republic a.s., for addresses of brand shops.

B) The take-back and separate collection of electrical and electronic equipment and portable batteries out of shops - information for consumers

Used EEE from households and portable batteries can be handed in in the network of WEEE and batteries take-back collection points, which are established in the CR.

The take-back of EEE and portable batteries is provided by O2 Czech Republic, a.s., based on contracts with REMA System, a.s., and REMA Battery, s.r.o.

C) The separate collection of electrical and electronic equipment – information for distributors and end users

The separate collection of used EEE not originating from households, that was introduced onto the market by O2 Czech Republic a.s., or former companies Český Telecom, a.s., and Eurotel Praha, spol. s r.o., as well as large amount of equipment that is listed in the paragraph A, is provided by O2 Czech Republic a.s. at a received request (a form is attached), unless the contract specifies otherwise. The end user fills in the form (request) and sends it to likvidace.odpadu@o2.cz. Based on this requirement the EEE will be loaded and removed for use or disposal within separate collection. Dismantling, construction work and other activities requiring additional costs are not a part of the separated collection provided by O2 Czech Republic, a.s., unless it is stated in the contract.
